TOKYO, Japan, August 20, 2025 / Future Corporation

From March 2024 to July 2025, Future Architect, Inc. (Headquarters: Shinagawa-ku, Tokyo; President: TANIGUCHI Tomohiko; hereinafter, "Future Architect"), a main operating company of Future Corporation (Securities Code: 4722), was entrusted with "α version renovation work for the full-scale deployment of standard-type electronic medical records"*¹ and "work developing standard specifications for the renovation of hospital information systems"*² from the Digital Agency, as well as "common calculation module design, development, operation, and maintenance work for medical service fee revision DX"*³ from the Health Insurance Claims Review & Reimbursement Services, as part of the medical digital transformation (DX)*⁴ being promoted by the Japanese government.

Currently, the government is promoting medical DX along the three pillars of (1) establishing a nationwide medical information platform, (2) standardizing electronic medical record information, etc., and (3) medical service fee revision DX. Through this project, the Future Group is promoting (2) and (3), further expanding support to contribute to the essential reform of public services in order to resolve the social issues surrounding medical care in Japan, which is facing a super-aged society ahead of the rest of the world.

■ Digital Agency, Government of Japan: "Development of standard-type electronic medical records"*¹ and "development of standard specifications for the renovation of hospital information systems"*²

In order to promote the nationwide sharing and utilization of electronic medical record information, the national government is leading efforts to develop and disseminate "hospital information systems, including electronic medical records, that comply with standard specifications" with common rules and functions.

■ Health Insurance Claims Review & Reimbursement services, Ministry of Health, Labour and Welfare: Medical service fee revision DX *³

Efforts to improve efficiency by reducing the burden on medical institutions and medical accounting system vendors in responding to medical service fee revisions. This project is promoted jointly with ORCA Management Organization Co., Ltd. (Headquarters: Bunkyo-ku, Tokyo; President: TSUYUGUCHI Taisuke).
